

GM says China July auto sales up 15.1 pct from year ago

Aug 6 (Reuters) – General Motors and its China joint ventures sold 199,503 vehicles in the country in July, up 15.1 percent from a year earlier, the U.S. automaker said on Monday. For the first seven months, sales were up 11.7 percent to 1.62 million units, GM said in a statement. GM makes vehicles in China in partnership with FAW Group and SAIC Motor Corp.
