

Vietnam Rubber Exports May Rise 30% to 105,000 Tons This Month

Aug. 27 – Vietnam, the fourth-biggest rubber exporter in 2010, may ship 105,000 metric tons this month, according to figures today from the General Statistics Office in Hanoi, 30 percent more than in the same period last year. Exports in the first eight months of the year were estimated at 603,000 tons, up 34 percent from a year earlier. The nation shipped 96,000 tons in July, up 13 percent from a previous assessment of 85,000 tons, revised figures from the Statistics Office show. Vietnam exported 81,000 tons in August last year according to preliminary GSO data.